Once the cargo is discharged from the ship onwards carriage to the final destination must be immediate. Marine Cover will only remain effective for 5 days after discharge from vessel.

Should the cargo be delayed in its journey or stored while en route to the consignees premises after discharge from the vessel, even within the 5 day delivery period, the goods shall be considered delivered and Marine Cover shall cease.

Attention is drawn to delays on the wharf after discharge and cargo stored in inland transport companies yards. Marine Cover, in these circumstances, ceases and it is the consignees (your) responsibility to ensure the cargo is adequately insured at all times thereafter.
